

Taken from - <http://www.fistfulofcomics.com/>

Written by: "Doc" Spector

Illustrated by: Charles Christman

State Fair tells the story of a state fair in the festival city of Milwaukee, but this is not your average state fair. The ominous preface lets the reader know that an anthropological experiment has gone awry and has affected the fair in Milwaukee.

At its core, State Fair is a story about vegetarians versus rednecks, but there is more going on under the surface. The book blends social commentary with humor and the supernatural to tell one of the most far out stories this reviewer has ever read. This first issue introduces the major characters, establishes their motivations, and sets up for the next 6 or 7 issues of the series.

The art is psychedelic, grotesque, and incredibly detailed; there is a lot of action taking place in each of the individual panels. The character designs are also phenomenal. They are unique and hilarious in their own distinctive ways. Case in point: Buxsome and Buttsome, the fanatical masterminds behind the psychic militant vegetarians.

State Fair is one of the funniest comic books I have read in a long time. I read it for the first time in a public coffee shop and I literally laughed out loud three or four times, earning me several strange looks. This issue is in black and white but there are plans to colorize the entire series for the release of the graphic novel. This is a fantastically original story that I can't recommend highly enough. Check it out.

Click here - <http://www.fistfulofcomics.com/podcasts/2008/07/07/log-vol-3-13-charlie-christman-state-fair-comic/> to listen to my interview with Charles Christman and be sure to visit their website www.gallonsofgore.com